

WORKSHOP

Climate Impact Research & Response

CLIMATE CHANGE, RISK ASSESSMENT, VULNERABILITY, ADAPTATION; ECONOMY

Date and time: December 6, 2012 from 13:30

Organisers: National Institute of Meteorology and Hydrology-BAS (partner under project “Climate change and the Bulgarian agriculture: economic impact and vulnerability” funded by the National Science Fund) and the Joint Innovation Centre of the Bulgarian Academy of Sciences

Venue: EU Information Centre, Representation of the EC in Bulgaria, 9 Moskovska Street, Sofia

13:30 – 14:00	Registration
14:00 - 14:10	Welcome address Assoc. Prof. Georgi Kortchev , Director of the National Institute of Meteorology and Hydrology-BAS
14:10 – 14:30	Overview of the achieved results under the “Climate change and the Bulgarian agriculture: economic impact and vulnerability” project Prof. Plamen Mishev , Coordinator , University of World and National Economy
14:30 – 15:00	State-of-play in Europe: an overview of CIRCLE-2 ERA-NET project and other science-policy activities and knowledge sources Tiago Lourenço , University of Lisbon
15:00 – 15:20	Climate variability and change, related impact on agriculture Prof. Vesselin Alexandrov , NIMH, BAS
15:20 – 15:40	Upper atmosphere climate variations – a case study Assoc. Prof. Stayko Kolev , NIMH, BAS
15:40 – 16:00	Break
16 :00 – 16:30	Climate Adaptation: a research perspective on dealing with uncertainties in adaptation decision Ana Rovisco , University of Lisbon
16:30 – 17:00	Indicators of Climate adaptation in policy cycle Roxana Bojariu , Romanian meteorological administration
17:00 – 17:15	Specialized climate database from regional climate model simulations for the aim of investigating the impact of climate change on the Bulgarian agriculture Assoc. Prof. Tania Marinova , NIMH, BAS
17:15 – 17:30	Partnership and networking through the Enterprise Europe Network: key instrument for building capacity in Horizon 2020 Karina Angelieva , JiC-BAS
17:30 - 18:00	Questions and answers. Closing of the seminar

All participants are invited for a glass of wine and individual discussions with the key lectors after the closure of the Workshop